s an Eagle

Oakland Elementary to welcome new principal

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

Kerstin Santarelli will be the new principal at Oakland Elementary School in Antioch.

ANTIOCH – "Once an Eagle, always an Eagle," said Kerstin Santarelli, team leader administrator at Lakes Community High School.

Santarelli has enjoyed her time at Lakes, but she will get a chance to spread her wings with another set of Eagles. She will join the staff at Oakland Elementary School in Antioch School District 34 as the new principal.

"Everything so far has been positive and a good feeling," Santarelli said about becoming principal.

An interesting fact about Santarelli obtaining the new job is that she wasn't looking for it.

"I don't know that I was specifically looking for this exact job, but it kind of found me," Santarelli said. "And that's how some of the positions I've been in kind of happened. When it's right for you, it feels right. And it's a good fit."

Though switching from high school education to elementary might seem like a challenge, it is one Santarelli said she was ready for. She previously taught at middle schools in Kenosha, Wis., and as a math resource teacher in an elementary building in Kenosha, Wis.

But even with her experience, Santarelli is still a bit nervous about the position.

"It has a big responsibility of course, and I think if I said I wasn't nervous I'd be lying because it's the fear of the unknown," Santarelli said.

That being said, she still feels "totally capable of the position."

Part of Santarelli's comfort comes from the District 34 community, whether it be other principals, the superintendent or the school board. Santarelli has felt welcomed and comfortable with the transition, she said.

She doesn't plan on forgetting her time at Lakes any time soon.

"I'm glad to still be a part of this Lakes community and the Antioch community. And I know we have great kids and parents because I've seen it the last four years," Santarelli said. "I still feel like I'm part of it, even though it's a different district. Now, I just get to be part of the foundation piece."

Springing away from Mother, Papa Goose

In this week's issue, humor columnist Judi Veoukas write about an unfortunate encounter with a goose on page 7A.

It is a terrific tale of "bravery" in the line of flapping wings.

Since Judi's "Off the Deep End" column has appeared in the Lake County Journals, I've received a number of e-mails from readers about it, telling me how much they've enjoyed the column that I'm quite the fan myself.

And some people have written to me wanting to know a little bit more about this columnist that seemed to come from nowhere.

Joe Grace

So I asked Judi to send me a tagline for her column.

In her own words, this is what she wrote:

Judi Veoukas and her husband, Stan, are five-year residents of Lake Villa. She has three children, three stepchildren, and 18 grandchildren, all of whom provide great writing material for her - whether they want to or not.

Judi works at the College of Lake County's Writing Center as a part-time tutor. She received a BA in English from Northeastern Illinois University in 1982, and has worked in various branches of the communications field.

She recently won first place in HumorPress' America's Funniest Humor Writing Contest.

So there you go. Now you know.

And remember to look for her column on the first and third Thursday of each month, as well as the fifth

Thursday if we have one, like we do this month.

You can also find her online at www.LakeCountyJournals.com.

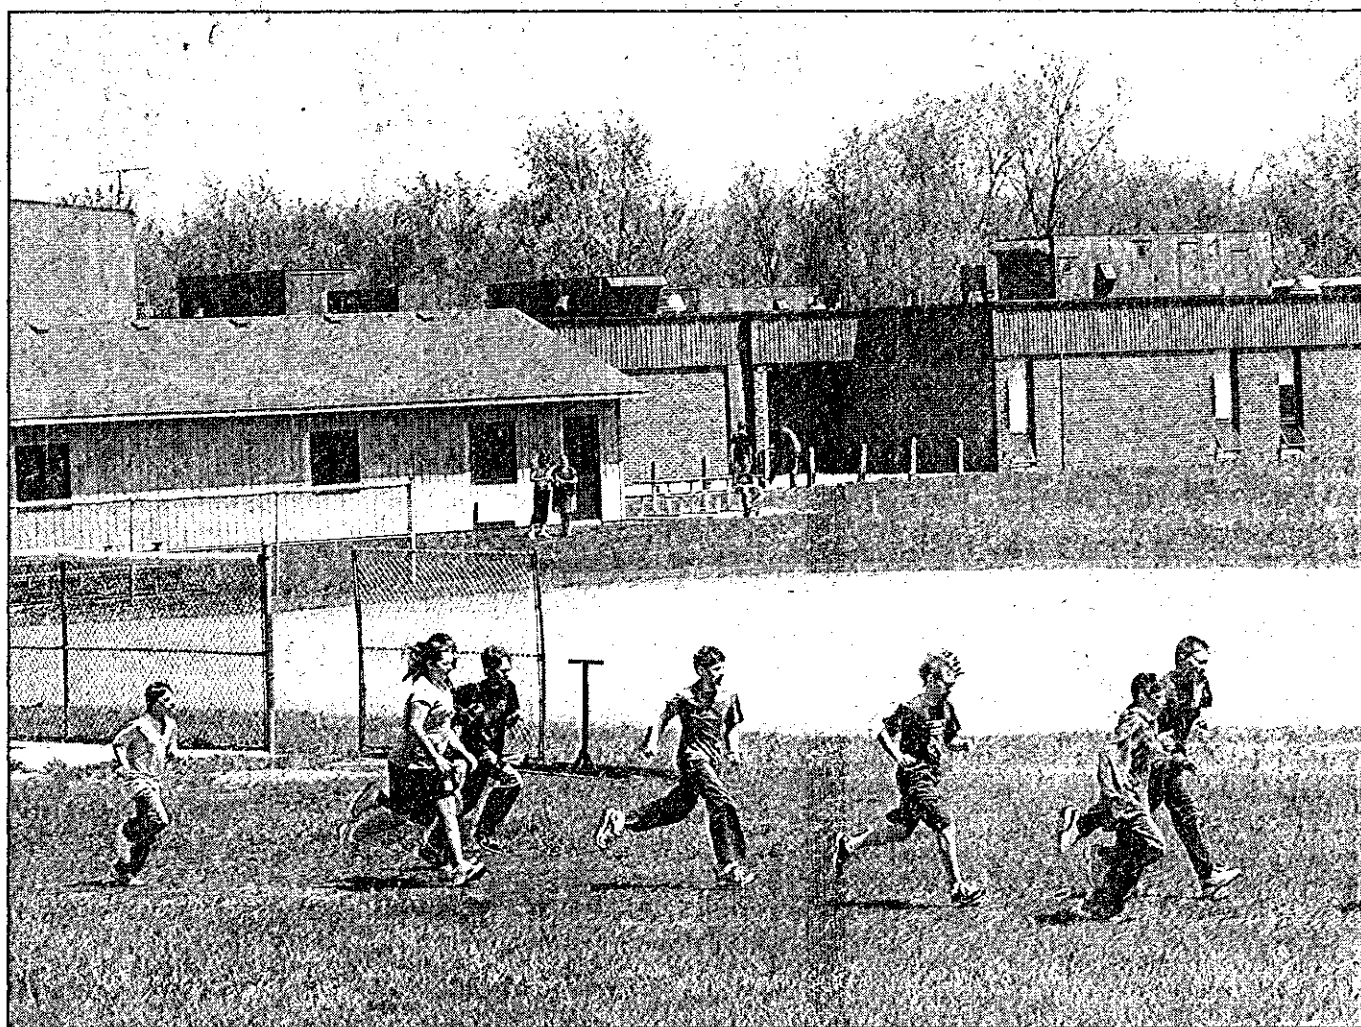

You can write for the Journals, too.

We're looking for those who might be interested in writing about area sports as a stringer.

If you would like to find out more about stringing for the Journals, you can e-mail me at the below address.

Bringing in the money

Antioch students raise hundreds for diabetes research

By JOSEPH MULLER
antioch@weeklyjournals.com

ANTIOCH – The Antioch Upper Grade School Diabetes fundraiser has come a long way since it started. Using what she knew about her students, gym teacher Beth Hook and the school's physical education department revamped the school's fundraiser, causing it to bring in more than quadruple the money of last year.

"At first, Hook was nervous about the changed fundraiser, thinking that it would either be a flop or a total success.

"The students went far and beyond my expectations," Hook said.

In past years, a handful of about 20 students would volunteer to go door-to-door, getting money from neighbors. Hook said the older version of the fundraiser would raise only a couple hundred dollars a year.

This year, Hook and the rest of her department decided to overhaul the fundraiser.

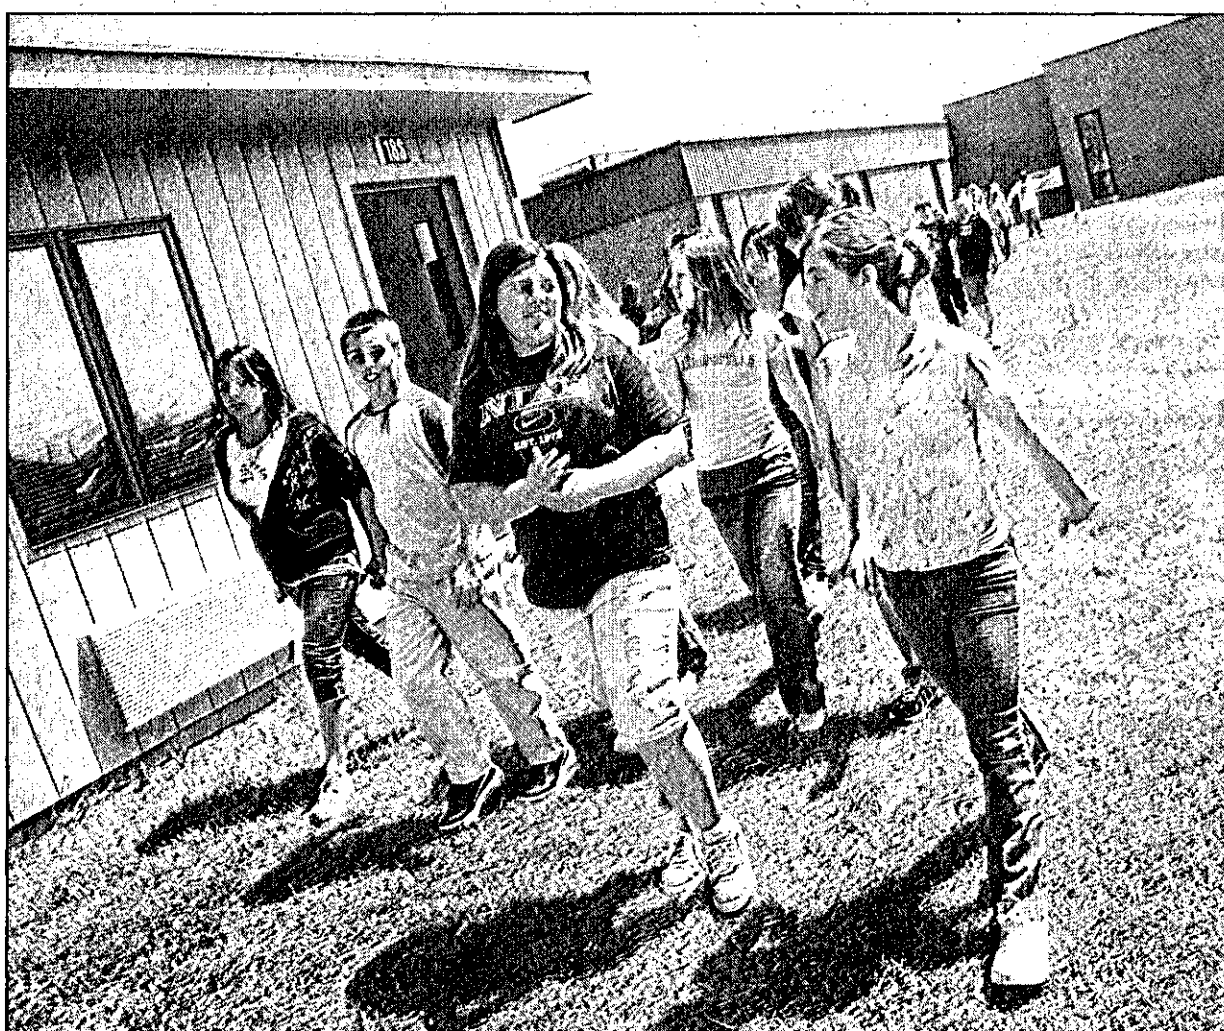

Rather than having only a few students participate, Hook wanted to get every one of Antioch Upper Middle School's almost 1,000 students involved. She also wanted to get the students to play a larger role, having them focus on donating money out of their own pockets. Although students could ask their parents for money, Hook said, only six checks from student's parents came in.

Before the fundraiser, each gym teacher taught their students what it is like to have diabetes. The lesson cleared up many misconceptions among students.

"I never knew how serious diabetes was," sixth grader Joey Sisk said.

"I didn't know there wasn't a cure," sixth grader Michael Terzic said.

Hook also asked her students to make small sacrifices for the charity, reminding them that if they even gave their juice box money for a few days, the sky would be the limit.

Hook said that many of her students went beyond donating their juice box money, with students giving their allowances and some even contributing their baby-sitting money.

Knowing the competitive nature of her students, Hook also threw in an extra incentive – the gym class that raised the most money would get a pizza party. Two gym classes inhabit every one of Antioch Upper Middle School's nine periods, making for a lot of competition among students.

"When you mention competition, the students really get into it," Hook said.

As a result of this revamped fundraiser, Antioch Upper Middle School students raised more than $1,700 for the American Diabetes Association, more than a 400 percent jump from last year's fundraiser.

On May 6, the students marked the climax of their charity as they all worked to collectively walk 1,700 miles – one mile for every dollar raised.

"A lot of students were getting really into the walk," Hook said, adding that many students were running above and beyond the dollar amount they raised.

Through this charity, some students learned more than just the struggles of diabetes.

"I've learned to put other people first," Terzic said.

It might seem early to talk about Santa's Enchanted Castle in Antioch, but that's just what the Antioch Chamber of Commerce wants you to do.

Members of the chamber and officials with the Antioch Meeting House are working on a concept to move Santa from the castle to the Meeting House, which is at 977 Main St.

Family fun at carnival

Antioch residents' Mother's Day festivities bring joy

By DAN MORRIS

ANTIOCH – Moms and their families took turns twirling on the Zipper, spinning in the Tea Cup ride and munching on funnel cakes during the annual Mother's Day Carnival in Antioch, which is sponsored by the 885 Civic Club.

Residents were treated to a taste of Coney Island at the corner of Route 83 and Orchard Street in downtown Antioch during the festivities last week.

The atmosphere at the carnival was thick with family fun. Moms, dads and kids darted from rides to games to cotton candy vendors. Smiles, laughter and excitement abounded at every turn.

Becky and Shawn Hiemstra brought their sons Sam and Jacob to the festivities for the boys' first carnival. Both watched as 4-year-old Sam spun through the turns on the Tornado roller coaster, all smiles as his gleeful shouts rang out.

For Becky, motherhood is all about joy.

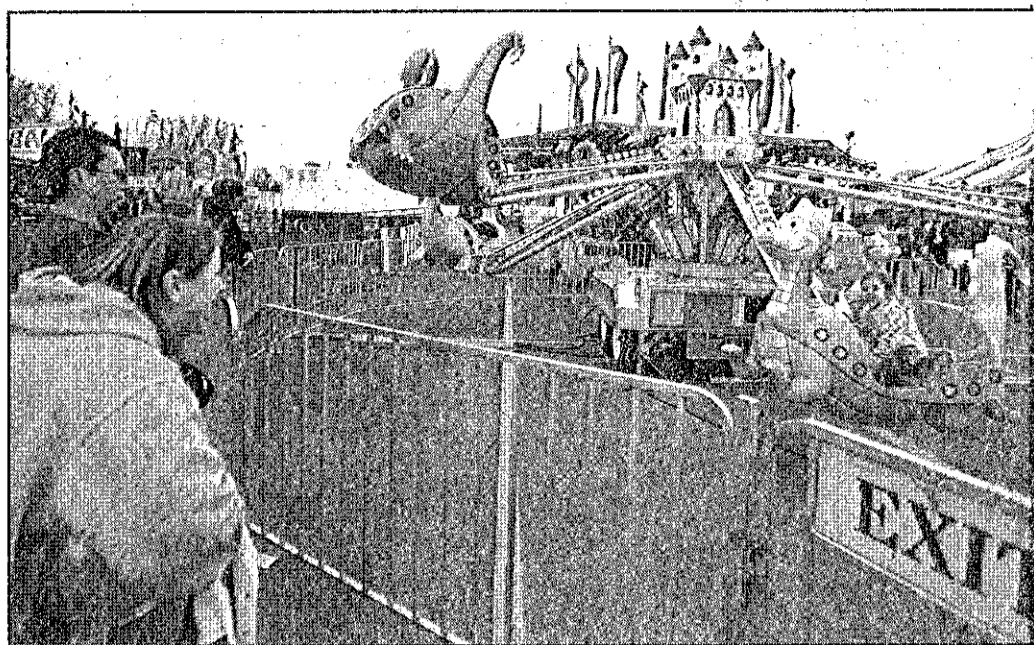

"I love it," she said.

Jill and Bob Hughes brought their kids Lauren and Jake to the carnival for the second time. While 4-year-old Jake twirled on the Tea Cups, 1-year-old Lauren anxiously waited her turn in her father's arms.

What's the carnival all about for the Hughes family?

"Rides for the kids," said Bob, motioning to a grinning Lauren. "She loves it."

"I'm lucky that I have two really great kids," said Jill, before heading off with the family to win some prizes at the Bull's Eye game and filling Jake and Lauren up to the brim with corn dogs and elephant's ears.

Michelle and Andrew Avila smile at their daughters Isabella, 4, and Gabriella, 19 months, at the Antioch Mother's Day Carnival. The carnival took place in downtown Antioch.

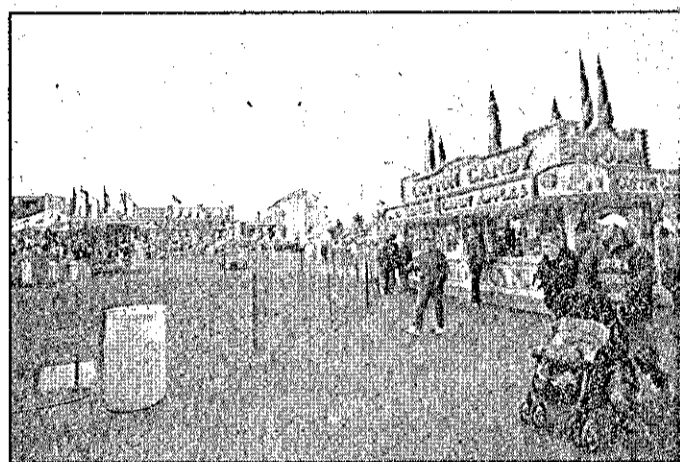

There was no shortage of variety at the carnival, which offered many rides, including a carousel and Ferris wheel. The event offered something for the casual carnival cruiser as well as the hardcore adrenaline junkie.

Joe LaFleur, Chairman of 885 Civic Club's Carnival Committee, manned the ticket booth as thrill seekers queued up for their favorite rides.

"Every dime that we make goes into the town," LaFleur said as he doled out tickets.

The carnival is the club's largest fundraiser, providing for four $1,000 scholarships that are given to students at Antioch High School and Lakes High School. It also provides for other charitable initiatives including PADS, Open Arms Food Pantry and the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

Windy City Amusements provided equipment and staff for the event. The company has been involved with the carnival since its inception more than two decades ago.

The 885 Civic Club was chartered in 1965 as a non-profit group to raise money and support the Antioch community. It takes its name from the club's original meeting place address: 885 Main Street.

Now, the club meets the first Wednesday of every month in a member's home. Along with the carnival, 885 Civic Club also plans social events throughout the year, such as Halloween parties and picnics.

The next carnival, however, is 12 months away. It is a tradition many Antioch families continue to turn to every Mother's Day.

Robotic Prostate Surgery Provides Fast Recovery

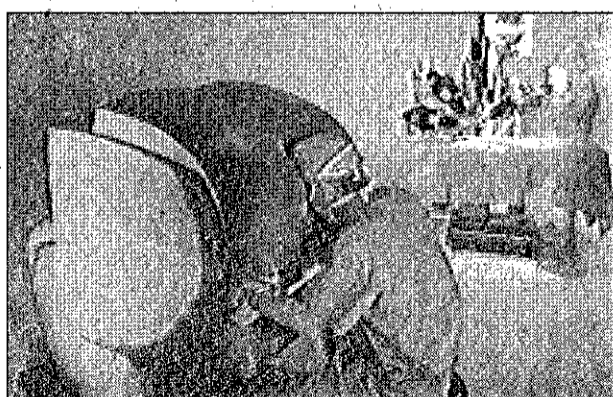

Matthew W. Johnson, MD
Urologist
Aurora St. Luke's
Medical Center

Choosing a treatment option for prostate cancer is a very personal decision. When removing the prostate gland is the best option, there is a minimally-invasive procedure that can provide a faster recovery while preserving sexual function.

Aurora St. Luke's Medical Center was the first facility in Wisconsin to offer the da Vinci™ Robotic Prostatectomy. This minimally-invasive surgical procedure replaces the larger incision and some of the risks of a traditional radical prostatectomy.

The state-of-the-art robotic system enables the surgeon to see vital anatomical structures more clearly and to perform a more precise surgical procedure. Recent studies suggest that the procedure may improve early return of continence and sexual function. Cancer control is equivalent.

The da Vinci system is a state-of-the-art robotic system that offers improved outcomes for patients needing a prostatectomy for prostate cancer.

The da Vinci system requires only a few small incisions in the abdomen through which micro instruments are inserted to access the prostate area. The surgeon's hands remain outside the patient's body. But the system translates the surgeon's hand movements into precise positioning and use of the surgical instruments within the surgical site. The operation achieves all the objectives of traditional surgery with less trauma to each patient. This translates into shorter recovery time and less pain.

The da Vinci system has been used for thousands of prostate procedures throughout the world. Matthew W. Johnson, MD, Peter F. Leonovicz, III, MD and Jeffrey A. Derus, MD perform robotic prostatectomies at Aurora St. Luke's. They are the most experienced surgeons in Wisconsin who do this operation.

"The recovery is shorter and it doesn't compromise cancer control," Dr. Johnson notes.

Potential benefits over open surgery include:

- Less pain
- Shorter hospital stay
- Less risk of infection
- Faster recovery
- Less scarring
- Less blood loss and fewer transfusions
- Quicker return to normal activities

Experienced Hands

Having performed over 500 procedures, more than twice as many urological procedures as any other provider, Aurora St. Luke's is Wisconsin's most experienced leader in robotic-assisted surgery.

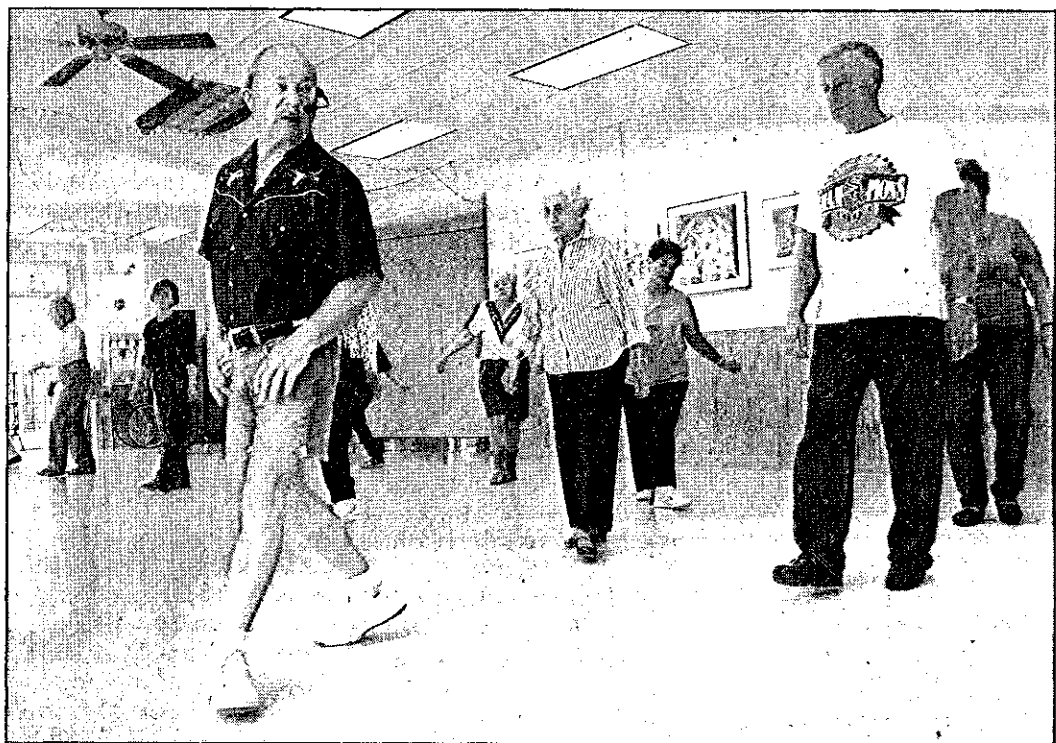

Almost all men under 70 years of age with localized cancer who are considering a radical prostatectomy are candidates for robotic surgery. Open surgery is still a good option for many patients, according to Dr. Johnson, including those with a larger prostate, who are very overweight or have had previous pelvic surgery.

"Early evidence from large studies shows that sexual function may be improved with robotic surgery over open surgery," Dr. Johnson says. "You can see and save the nerves better. Robotic surgery provides superior instrumentation. With a millimeter separating cancer and nerves, the magnified view of robotic surgery makes a millimeter look like a centimeter. Getting into that space is much easier with da Vinci."

He keeps on dancing

Antioch line dance teacher doesn't stop

By MATT DOUTHETT

mdouthett@nwnews.com

ANTIOCH — Nothing can stop Norm Rennert from living life the way he wants to.

Not even a brain aneurysm. Rennert, who teaches line dancing classes in Fox Lake, Antioch and Gurnee, was taking out his garbage on March 21 when he felt an excruciating pain coming from his head. He originally thought he was having a heart attack, so he called for an ambulance and was rushed to Froedtert Hospital in Milwaukee, where doctors discovered the aneurysm.

"I'm just so grateful for the care I received because it happened just three weeks ago, and now I'm back dancing again," Rennert said. "You can't beat modern medical technology these days. It's like [the aneurysm] never happened."

As his Fox Lake class members started coming in the door on his first day back, they greeted him with hugs.

Some even brought cake as a way to celebrate Rennert's return.

"It looks like I'm going to get fat today," Rennert said jokingly as he saw the cake.

Rennert had a choice when he was in the hospital. He either could have elective surgery, or he would have been restricted to lifting no more than 10 pounds for the rest of his life.

His amplifier that he uses for his classes weighs 27 pounds. He didn't even have to think twice about his decision.

"If I didn't have the surgery, I wouldn't have been able to teach anymore — and that just wasn't going to happen," Rennert said.

Rennert teaches all around Lake and McHenry counties, as well as southeastern Wisconsin.

He said he puts 600 miles on his car every week, but he wouldn't have it any other way.

Rennert said he had an overwhelming amount of love and support during his recovery from the aneurysm.

"I had so many prayers and blessings from everyone — it was just unbelievable," he said. "I teach so many classes that the members become like family to me. Everyone is concerned with everybody else and what is going on in their lives.

"You can't describe how good you feel when you get overwhelming support like that," Rennert said.

Rennert said dancing has been his life, and he's been doing it for a long time. He started teaching line dancing classes three years ago after retiring from his career as a computer specialist. He said the three weeks he spent away from dancing really got to him.

"Being off those three weeks due to the aneurysm really drove me crazy," he said. "Just seeing everyone back here is a blessing."

Rennert has devoted his life to dancing. He said he's extremely happy that he is back to teaching.

"Nothing beats dancing," he said. "[Teaching] it is the best thing I have ever done — it's my calling."

Feathers in my cap not forgotten

There are a few things you never forget: the day you are married, the day each of your child is born, the day a goose lands on your head. We observe anniversaries and birthdays. A goose landing atop your head should be remembered too. And, so it shall.

A few years back I worked in a building next to a lake, although the word "work" is debatable. Mostly, I stared out the window. One thing I stared at was a lavish garden, directly in front of the entrance to the one-company structure. The garden was placed there for decorative purposes. It was NOT placed there to be a maternity ward for goslings. However, unaware of company policy, Mother Goose set up her nest.

Having given birth three times, I knew better than to disturb anything with child, so I'd walk by each day, smiling sympathetically at Mother Goose. Lurking just beyond the nest, though, was Father Goose. He and I would exchange brief, but distrustful glances.

My first inkling something was awry came as I walked to the entrance one Friday morning alongside the company owner's wife. Father Goose, possibly weary of having no more job status than Nest Patrol, came swiftly and defiantly toward Mrs. Company Owner, but backed off, barely pecking the surface of her posh coat. Something in that minuscule goose brain detected that she had clout, and attacking her was not in his best interest.

The following Monday I smugly walked by Nest and Nest Patrol, this time unaccompanied by a landowner, but sure that Father Goose remembered I had friends in high places. Unfortunately, some irrational paternal instinct kicked in, and Father Goose raged out of control. He spread his gigantic wings and charged directly at my hair.

Having a goose flapping on my head was not an experience I want to ever re-live; in fact, I wasn't sure I was going to live through this one. Luckily, Father Goose deemed a hair scare good enough and rescinded, leaving me dazed but unharmed. Still, as I teetered into the office shaking uncontrollably, my coworkers realized this was more than my usual Monday-morning angst.

When I calmed down enough to explain my state, my boss did what anyone would do when someone is attacked by fowl: she called the police. Within an hour, the local animal warden took my statement. His only suggestion, since goose-with-child is a protected species, was to put snow fencing around the nesting area to keep the geese in.

"But, they must have a little opening so they can get in and out at will," she added, with militant authority.

I assumed there must be a reason for this; nevertheless, I envisioned Father and Mother Goose musing to one another, "Gee, we're going to just stay put even though there's an opening for us to get out," followed by, "and we can fly - duh."

There never was a snow fence put there, with or without an opening. My solution was to wear a hard-hat to and from my car, which I did while listening to "honk, honk" emanate from guys in the building who had minimal sympathy for a woman attacked by a goose.

I did have a talk with Father Goose, through the window, of course. I mouthed that if he attacked again, I would dress him in a holiday goose outfit. Still, I donned my hard-hat and tried to make myself invisible each time I walked by the nest. It worked. He never again attacked. Apparently, we had established, for lack of a better term, a permanent and binding goose truce.

Fourth-graders fueling housing boom for owls

Students build nest for needy raptors in area

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

LAKE FOREST - Though the real estate market may be soft, housing options are looking up for great horned owls in Lake Forest.

A fourth-grade class at Everett Elementary School recently built and installed a nest for great horned owls, helped by a naturalist with Lake Forest Open Lands Association and an arborist with The Care of Trees.

The young students in Catherine Sheehan's class already were bird enthusiasts before Jill London, of Open Lands, visited their classroom to tell them about great horned owls and show them how to make a nest for the large, predatory birds.

Great horned owls do not build their own nests. They typically using the old nests of crows, squirrels and hawks to raise their young.

London showed the eager students how to weave grape vines around a wire basket to provide comfy confines for an owl family.

The nest will go up in a tree in Open Lands' Everett Farm Nature Preserve, not far from the school and not far from where many of the children live.

But how would they place it in a tree?

Jake Kubisiak, an arborist and professional tree climber with the Lake Bluff office of The Care of Trees handled that.

Fourth-grade students from Everett Elementary School in Lake Forest helped Jake Kubisiak maneuver a nest for great horned owls into a tree in the Everett Farm Nature Preserve, one of the holdings of the Lake Forest Open Lands Association.

• OWLS

This would be the fifth time that Kubisiak has volunteered to place a great horned owl nest for Open Lands.

On a cool but bright spring day, the great-horned-owl team gathered to place the bulky nest.

The students carried the nest to a tree in the preserve, studying natural landmarks along the way so that they can find their way back in the future to see if an owl family takes up residence there.

Along the way, they picked up twigs and leaves to further line the nest and put the finishing touches on it.

Then Kubisiak geared up in ropes, harness and helmet to ascend the tree.

In no time, he was nearly 30 feet up and ready to hoist the nest. The students below were captivated by every move, some following the proceedings by binocular.

He secured the nest to the tree and soon was rappelling back down to the ground.

"This was a magical experience for the students," London said in a news release. "It will be a lifelong memory for them. They can go back with friends and family and monitor the nest. We talked about it being a secret spot, so as not to disturb any owls. They can only share the location with a few people."

Soon to be fifth-graders, the students planned a reunion at the nest site in February 2009 to see if any owls have chosen to live there. Great horned owls typically look for nests around December and are incubating eggs by February.

Oh brother, we can be a bother

Let's face it. Life is stressful. Work. Finances. Health. Earthquakes. Tornadoes. Dancing with the Stars.

Sometimes it can just be too much.

And this is why vacations were invented.

I took my first five-day vacation last week since, well, I don't remember. It's been awhile.

I went with my family to Daytona Beach, Fla., a magical land filled with sand, sun and shuffleboard courts.

Life just doesn't seem so worrisome when you're walking along a beach, the surf riding up on your ankles.

Most of all, it was good to hang out with my brother, who I don't get to see much since moving from southern Indiana to northern Illinois.

Like most siblings, my brother and I haven't always gotten along. He poked me. I poked him back. He told our mother that I poked him. I told our mother that he poked me first. He poked me again. I punched him. He told our mother I punched him. I told our mother he poked me again first. Our mother sent us both to our room for the next week and took two Advil. (Oh, and by the way, Happy Mother's Day again, mom. I don't know how you did it.)

But as we've gotten older, the fights have diminished. A large part of this is due, I believe, to the fact that we no longer poke each other.

We have to be careful, though; one poke and it could be Brother War III. Poking, my friends, is a slippery slope.

On one of the days at the beach, our 8- and 9-year-old cousins came to visit us along with our aunt.

My cousins poke each other far too often. So much in fact that they were separated from sitting next to each other both times we went out to eat with them.

As my brother and I were out in the ocean with the youngest, Timmy, he asked us why my brother and I weren't fighting, as if it were the most foreign concept in the world to him, more so even than soap.

I calmly explained that we were much too old to fight and that we no longer cared if one of us was hogging the gameboy for too long.

But that's not exactly it.

As unlikely as it might seem, as we've gotten older, we actually have gotten a bit wiser.

We learned that instead of harassing each other, it's so much better to team up and harass our mother.

We each have our own toys, an important step toward getting along for all siblings.

And we no longer refute what the other says.

If he says he was on the math team, I'll just let it slide despite the fact I know he was a just a backup member.

If I say I scored 40 points in a basketball game, he'll just let it slide despite knowing that it happened in a high school church league when I was a freshman in college.

We've stopped trying to one-up each other.

The best example of this came one night on vacation while playing miniature golf. After he took a big lead, I came back and took a lead of my own before imploding and eventually losing by a dozen or so strokes.

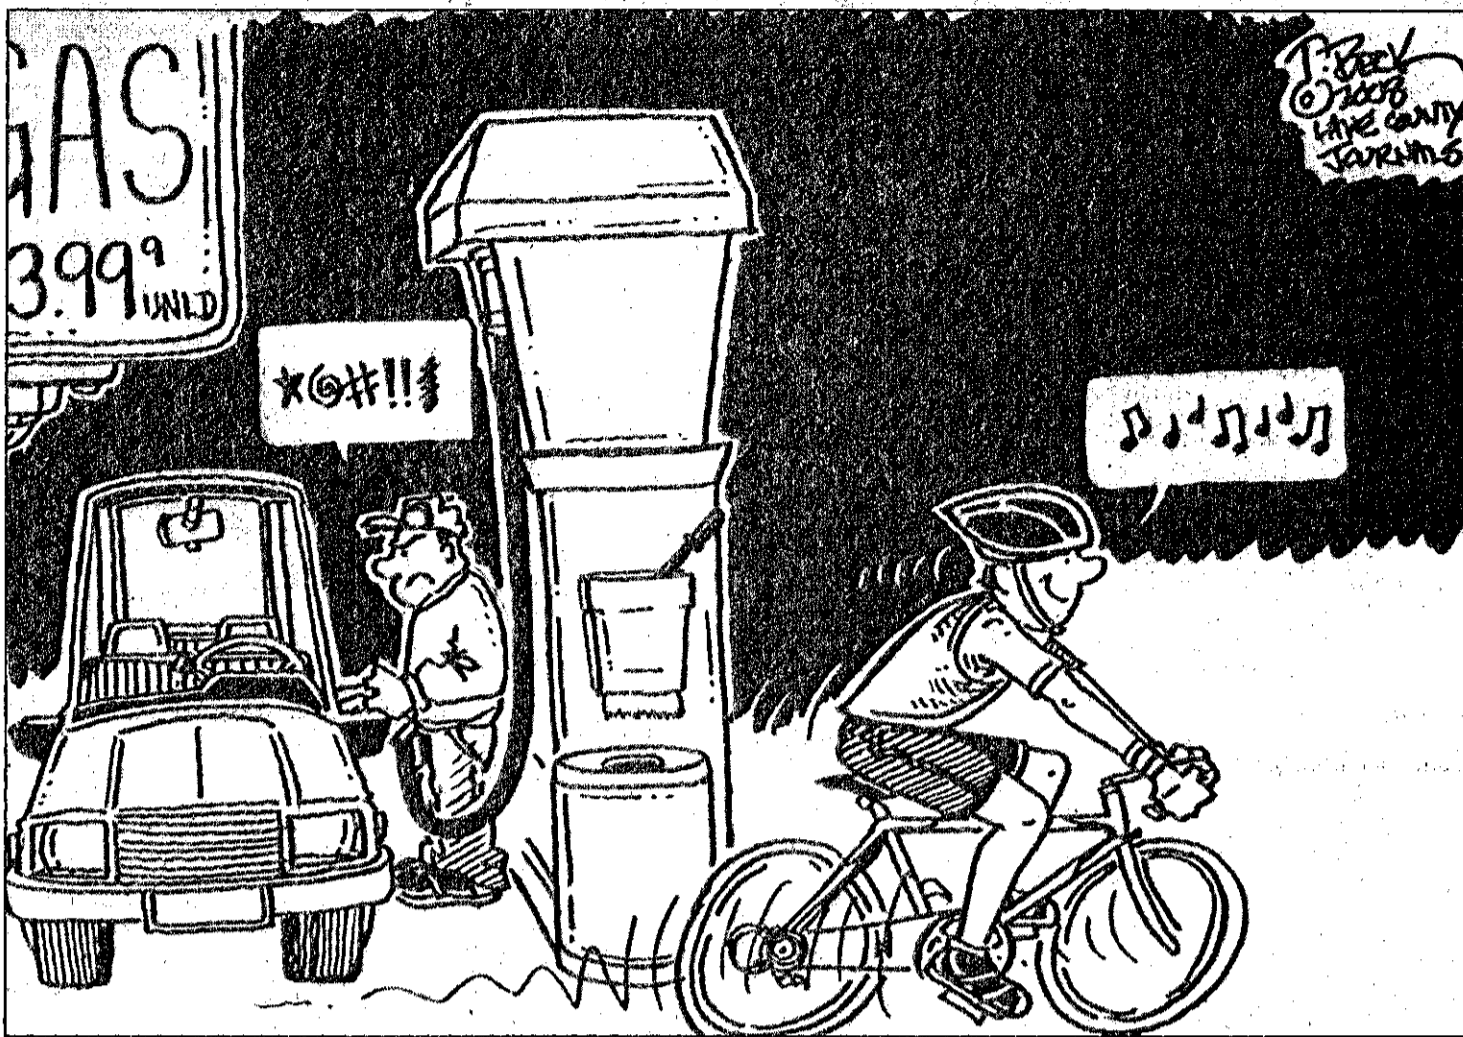

Instead of rubbing it in my face - something that would have happened when we were younger and would have then caused me to take revenge by, oh, I don't know, throwing my golf club at him - he bought five pieces of hot dog to toss in the golf course's alligator pit (it's Florida, what do you expect?) and shared them with me.

We then happily fished for alligators, while somewhere out there, our cousins were poking each other and yelling for their mom.

So, Timmy, to answer your question more fully, just wait a few years and you and your brother will stop fighting and start feeding alligators together. But in the meantime, stop poking your brother. It's a slippery slope.

Ethanol not the cause

To the Editor:

As a child, the writer of the editorial "Turning food into fuel" surely must have felt genuine pangs of guilt anytime an adult urged "eat your peas, there are kids starving in China."

If a child doesn't eat his peas, are people really going to starve?

Hopefully, we are all sophisticated enough to recognize that hunger is a complex issue. It doesn't matter how much food there is in the United States, or anywhere else for that matter, if drought, civil unrest, or government instability are present, hunger will persist.

Farmers support President Bush's call for more emergency food assistance. It is our national obligation to help those in need.

But like those peas, we'd like to point out that it's rather simplistic to suggest that taking one more kernel of corn out of ethanol production is going to save anyone. Maintaining our national commitment to renewable fuels will stretch out the fuel supply and help make Americans more energy independent.

Iowa State University recently concluded that between 1995 and 2007, ethanol saved American motorists in the range of 29 to 40 cents for every gallon of gas they pumped into their tanks. Split the difference, and that's a savings of $50 billion a year. That's the kind of information the oil industry - with its record profits - doesn't want you to know. Each bushel of corn that goes into ethanol production generates 17 pounds of high protein livestock feed. Because of advances in technology, average corn yields are on the rise. We can have food and fuel. We must keep our ethanol infrastructure in place, if our nation is ever going to realize the promise of cellulosic ethanol.

Local media, you can continue condemning ethanol all you want. Use any excuse to justify your criticism. But just understand that like a kid being told to eat his peas, we know it's not the truth.

Thanks for the shower

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Breakfast Exchange Club of Gurnee I would like to thank the entire Gurnee Community for their support with our recent project, "Gurnee's Biggest Baby Shower." In special recognition of National Child Abuse Prevention Month, the project helped to bring awareness in our area to the Safe Haven Law, and alert parents of the existence of the Illinois Abandoned Newborn Infant Protection law. Our club was blessed to have the cooperation from Warren High School District 121, especially the EXCEL Club who coordinated and organized the efforts of the staff and many clubs including FBLA, Student Council, MECS, International Club, Astronomy Club, Students of Service, and National Honor Society. Also to the Woodland School District 50 staff for their generosity with this project. This joint effort also included shower gift drop-off sites for the community to participate. These included Gurnee Police Department and both Gurnee Fire Departments, the Gurnee Village Hall, the Gurnee Park District, and Hunt Club Park. Many donations were dropped off because of the publicity our local newspapers provided for us. We would especially like to thank the News Sun, Journal, and Pioneer Press for recognizing the importance of this law. Through your generosity more than 1,700 baby items were collected and distributed to an area facility that helps families and infants in crisis.

Increasing awareness of this issue and alerting parents of the existence of the Illinois Abandoned Newborn Infant Protection law is vital. This law provides a parent who might otherwise abandoned an infant in an unsafe place, the ability to bring an unharmed newborn seven days or younger to a staff member at a "safe haven", staffed fire station, police station, hospital, or emergency medical facility. The parents may remain anonymous and will not be prosecuted.

While no infants have been reported left at safe havens in Lake County, 41 babies have been safely relinquished in Illinois since the law's inception. Unsafe abandonment's total 49, with 23 of those infants found dead.

If you would like more information regarding this law, it can be found at www.saveabandonedbabies.org.

Together we can make a difference.

Bill defeated

To the Editor:

All Illinois taxpayers have to feel relieved that Senate Joint Resolution CA 92 was defeated on April 29. The bill would have put a graduated income tax increase on the fall ballot. The vote in the Senate was 35 no and 19 yes. The only Lake County legislator voting to increase personal and corporate taxes was Democrat Sen. Terry Link of District 30 of Waukegan, the Illinois senator renowned for taxing individuals and businesses out of the state.

The Republican Assembly of Lake County joined other anti-tax groups in the week prior to the vote in phoning more than 150,000 households in nine targeted districts asking that the taxpayers contact their legislator and vote no on the bill.

We were successful, and Illinois taxpayers, individuals and businesses have been saved from hundreds of millions of dollars in excessive taxes and businesses have been saved from further disintegration of their capital by Illinois Democrats.

No more gambling

To the Editor:

The Senate passed SB 2702 to legalize Advanced Deposit Wagering and Internet betting on horse racing.

Legalizing bets on the Internet won't save horse racing, but it will expand gambling in every home or office in Illinois with a computer.

Bets can be placed 24 hours a day, seven days a week from a computer, cell phone, BlackBerry, or other electronic devices. Gamblers could lose their house from their home.

The Attorney General issued an opinion on Nov. 2, 2001, that Advanced Deposit Wagering was illegal in Illinois. Yet, Balmoral Park, Maywood Park, Hawthorne Race Course, and Fairmount Park entered into agreements with Yobet.com to offer advance deposit wagering and online betting in January of this year. In November 2007, TwinSpires.com, a subsidiary of Arlington Park's parent company Churchill Downs Inc., bought three Internet betting companies, took over their advance accounts, and started accepting wagers in Illinois, according to a Chicago Tribune article. Talk about putting the horse before the cart!

SB 2702 will allow any fees from advance deposit wagering that are currently being conducted illegally and are in es-crow, to be distributed, with no legal action taken!

The Illinois General Assembly could pass a law making it a felony to accept or place wagers on horse racing in Illinois as they did in Arizona. The Illinois Racing Board could block the signals from the tracks. Expanding gambling on the Internet will increase gambling addiction and harm.

SB 2702 now goes to the House for consideration.

Contact your state representative and ask him/her to oppose expansion of gambling to the Internet. Illinois citizens do not need faster ways to lose their money.

Thanks to fire department

To the Editor:

Recently, my brother Florian and his best friend, Ray Blaettler, were fishing from the Wooster Lake dock here at Tanneron Bay. The wind came up strong and Ray who has asthma started to have breathing trouble.

He was able to walk to Florian's house, but even after using several shots from his nebulizer, he was having a hard time trying to breathe.

Sister-in-law, Elizabeth called for help and in a few minutes, Fox Lake paramedics were at Ray's side stabilizing him. They got his blood pressure to normal and his breathing regular. What could have been very serious was routine.

Florian told me that he was glad the Fox Lake squad was so professional. The best he had experienced.

I just want to thank those great firefighters and paramedics for what they do. In nine years living here, this was the first time we had such an experience.

Fox Lake and neighboring towns can be thankful we have such able emergency responders when we need them.

What will the girl say next?

Out of the mouths of babes. It's what people say when a child says something unexpectedly profound. But what about those times when they say embarrassing things that make a parent want to crawl under a rock?

My daughter, Angelina, is 3 years old and just recently entered a common preschooler stage known as the Potty-Mouth Phase.

It's not that I am shocked by any of the new things she has been saying. After all, my husband and I have three sons, ages 6, 8 and 8. Let me explain for those of you without boys.

Having one or more in this age group means it is very likely that most conversations will deteriorate into talk of bodily functions and wild laughter. And don't even play a TV program of home videos showing a man getting hit you know where. That will have them just rolling on the floor.

No, what is most embarrassing is my daughter's timing when uttering her precious verbal gems.

For example, take last week's visit to the local drugstore. Now, my daughter has a head of curls that always elicits comments, and this outing was no exception.

But as the elderly lady stopped to comment on her "darling" curly mop, my daughter smiled and sweetly responded, "Booger-nose pee-pee sandwiches."

And then laughed hysterically.

Yes, how very darling. I was rendered momentarily speechless but recovered quickly, hastily thanking the woman for her compliment and making a beeline for the door. She watched us leave, a puzzled expression on her face.

According to the experts, this preschool potty mouth behavior is completely normal; a way of testing limits and "learning the power of language."

Yes, "the power of language," also known as the ability to change Mom's mood and not in a good way.

The stars come out Ravinia's summer scheduled to feature big-name acts

By TERRY LONCARIC
kgressey@nwnewsgroup.com

Some of music's biggest stars will once again be performing under the stars this season at Ravinia.

In what might be the outdoor venue's most eclectic season, the 2008 lineup spans classical, world, pop, jazz, country and rock music.

Ravinia Festival President Welz Kauffman said the Highland Park concert destination has scored some groundbreaking events this year. Throughout a 101-day schedule, it will present more than 150 shows, including 30 in which artists will make their Ravinia debut and 11 premiere new works.

A-list talent

Performers range from old Ravinia favorites, like Tony Bennett, Roberta Flack, the Beach Boys and the BoDeans, to British reggae group UB40, indie pop queen Feist, 6-year-old pianist (and Rockford native) Emily Bear, and Los Tigres del Norte, a ranchero band Billboard magazine described as one of today's most influential Mexican bands.

One of the biggest catches of the season is James Taylor. Responsible for some of the best known folk-rock hits in history, the legendary singer will make his first visit to Ravinia with his band to perform two concerts June 6-7. Tickets to see Taylor sold out in just 48 hours.

"We've been trying for 40 years to get James Taylor," Kauffman said. "I knew this was the perfect venue for Taylor. He has so many hits, but he has great patter in between his songs. He really connects with the audience."

In the category of famous singer-songwriters, John Hiatt and Lyle Lovett continue to draw the Ravinia faithful.

"They are both great songwriters, and they know how to play to the intimacy of Ravinia," Kauffman said. "They somehow make it seem like a nightclub."

Willie Nelson, one of the outlaws of country music, will perform June 20 at Ravinia after a five-year absence.

"He's a great performer," Kauffman said. "He has a brand-new album he has produced with Kenny Chesney. It has a fresh feel to it. He's always been a maverick."

Pop singer Sheryl Crow (Aug. 10), boy band The Backstreet Boys (Aug. 24) and disco diva Donna Summer (Aug. 30) are part of this year's schedule. Some big double bills fill the season too, including R&B legends Isaac Hayes and Roberta Flack (June 13), Latin-tinged rockers Los Lonely Boys and Los Lobos (Aug. 8), bluesmen Buddy Guy and Jonny Lang (Aug. 28) and alt-rock acts Aimee Mann and Squeeze (Aug. 31).

Teaming up

Those aren't the only musicians forming partnerships at Ravinia this summer.

Wilco drummer Glen Kotche has composed a new piece of world music he will perform on Sept. 3 with the Kronos String Quartet, one of the more hip classical ensembles. Outside of his gig with the Chicago rock band, Kotche enjoys fusing Hindu chants with Balinese and African rhythms.

Some classical virtuosos love to trade chops with pop performers.

"I love the fact they compose works that are not only significant, but they can also reach an audience," Kauffman said.

One of Ravinia's odd couples this year is Led Zeppelin lead singer Robert Plant and bluegrass performer Alison Krauss - who will perform June 18. Last year, Plant and Krauss cut the tracks for "Raising Sand" in Krauss' living room. Like many music fans, Kauffman fell in love with the album.

"I flipped out," Kauffman said. "I was a Led Zeppelin fan since I was a little kid. Robert Plant has these Celtic roots, and bluegrass is a ground zero music for a lot of musicians. Their album is so romantic, and their voices work so well together. Who would have imagined that?"

Symphony of sound

After 72 years of showcasing the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Ravinia has some special classical events planned this season.

The CSO will attack Mahler's intricate "Symphony of a Thousand" on July 26 with support from seven opera singers, three choruses and numerous musicians. Joshua Bell, a young violinist, performs the rousing "Romanian Rhapsody." Lang Lang, one of Ravinia's discoveries, who made his debut in 1999, will tackle Gershwin and Rachmaninoff with theatrical flair on July 20.

Ravinia presents the light operas of Mozart for the first time in the intimate setting of the Martin Theatre. There's a provocative series, "Breaking the Silence," featuring the suppressed music of the Holocaust. Many of the more complex concerts are preceded by lectures.

"The classical world, like any other area of the arts, needs a constant priming of the pump," Kauffman said.

'Ballad of Emmett Till' recalls tragic memories

By TOM WITOM
thomaswitom@yahoo.com

The brutal 1955 murder of Emmett Till, a talkative 14-year-old black boy from Chicago, is often credited with igniting the modern civil rights movement.

Till was tortured and slain for allegedly whistling at a white woman in a candy store while he was visiting relatives in Mississippi.

This well-known tragic story is powerfully dramatized in "The Ballad of Emmett Till," premiering at Chicago's Goodman Theatre. Playwright Ifa Bayeza researched the facts and injected creative interpolation to transform what began a decade ago as a one-act play into a searing full-length drama.

There's music and poetry in the play, and Bayeza takes her time laying the groundwork, fleshing out the key players.

One gets a sense of Till's buoyant personality, his mother's determination to avenge her son's death and the racial disquiet that divided the North and the South.

If only Bayeza had stopped with the trial and inevitable decision by the jury, "The Ballad of Emmett Till" would have worked even better.

Until then, the violence perpetrated on Till transpired mostly off stage.

Bayeza only weakened Act II by adding a graphic scene at the end that was a flashback to Till's tortured end; the point had already been made earlier.

Oz Scott directed, and G.W. Mercier presented a simple, adaptable set. Lighting design by Victor En Yu Tan also was highly effective.

Joseph Anthony Byrd brings depth to the role of Till.

Deidrie Henry elicits passion as the protective mother; and John Wesley brings understanding as the aged great uncle.

Fish or Foe? What Seafood Is Better for You and the Environment

(MS) - A greater number of people are adapting a "green" lifestyle to the way they eat, choosing foods that are better for the environment, like organic food. Not only do proponents of organic food say it tastes better and is more nutritionally sound, they say it is grown without chemical pesticides or other additives, making it a better choice for the environment.

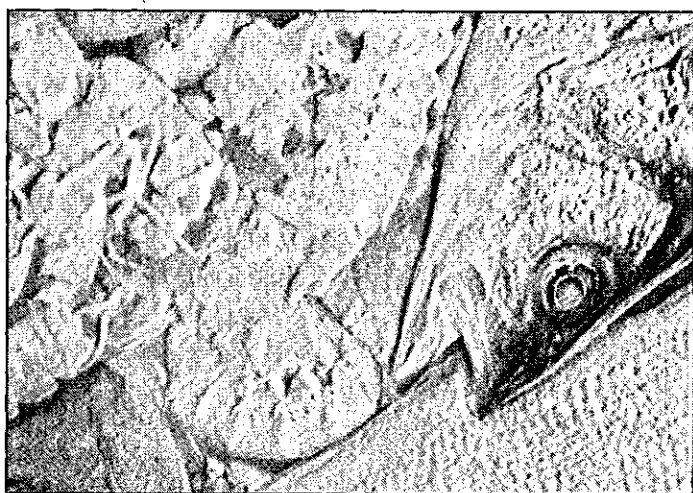

That's fine for the food cultivated in and on the soil. But what about the food people enjoy from the sea? Are there ways to pick and choose among seafood, selecting species that are less likely to have high pollutant levels and positive ecological sustainability? Yes.

Environmental Defense, a Washington, D.C.-based organization, rated fish you'd commonly find at your local seafood store or supermarket fish counter. Here's a selection of what to choose and what to avoid.

Good Choices

These fish are healthy and eco-smart options.

Dungeness crab: When harvested, only the large adult males are caught. This leaves plenty of crabs behind to propagate the species.

Some species of seafood are better for you and the environment.

Mahi-mahi: Mahi-mahi populations are considered very resilient because they grow and reproduce very quickly. There is also very low mercury contamination risk.

Black cod: These Alaskan fish are usually caught with bottom long lines that don't harm other species or the ocean floor.

Maybe Reconsider

These fish are not as sound as the "good choices," so think again before buying.

Orange roughy: A slow-growing and maturing fish. Schools can't recover quickly enough if they are overfished, which they usually are.

Bluefin tuna: This slow-growing fish is a favorite for sushi. But watch out because it usually contains mercury.

Monkfish: Populations of monkfish are dwindling. Also, dredging fishing methods are terrible for the ocean environment.

Seafood to Avoid

These fish are typically dangerous to eat because of contamination.

Bluefish: This species typically contains mercury, PCBs and pesticides.

Swordfish: Another fish high in mercury.

Atlantic salmon: These fish are often raised in fish farms that pollute nearby waterways. They can also contain PCBs, pesticides and dioxin, which is a super-toxic chemical.

Did you know?

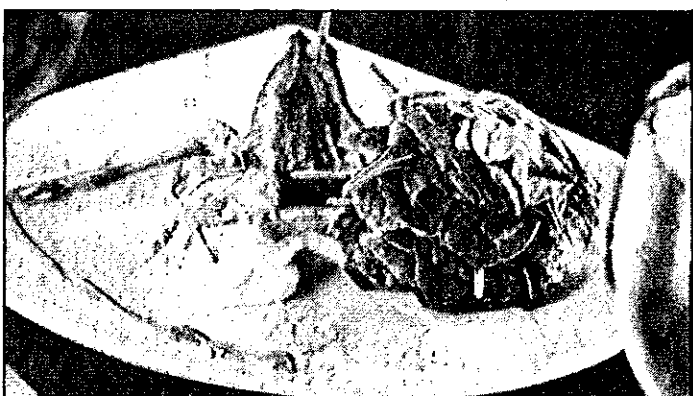

(MS) — Entrepreneurs looking to venture into the restaurant business have long been told that roughly 90 percent of restaurants fail within their first year of operation.

However, while that was once a widely accepted statistic, it's not nearly close to being true. In fact, research suggests the figure is far closer to 60 percent, and that's after three years, not one.

H.G. Parsa, an associate professor in the Ohio State University's Hospitality Management program, had heard enough of the "90 percent" talk to do some research of his own as to the validity of the number.

What Parsa found was that roughly 1 in 4 restaurants close or change ownership within a year of opening. The number rises to 3 in 5 (60 percent) after three years.

Parsa was inspired by an American Express commercial that quoted the infamous (and, apparently, false) statistic. He then examined Health Department turnover records of over 2,500 restaurants in Columbus over a 3-year period. Remarkably, the 60 percent failure rate is on par with the cross-industry rate for new businesses, essentially making the restaurant business no more or less risky than any other.

Eyes on the postseason

We're halfway through May, and you know what that means — regional action.

That's right, girls soccer regionals got under way earlier this week.

And in Lake County, we have a lot to look forward to this postseason.

To start off with, Antioch won the North Suburban Conference Prairie Division title. And the Sequoias came so close to winning the NSC title, but lost in double overtime to Lake Forest. And how about Carmel, which went 10-0 in the East Suburban Catholic Conference?

The Corsairs didn't do too bad on the year either; they finished the season at 17-1.

But as we all know, upsets can happen. Even if things don't work out, we should still make sure to remember the success and good times of regular season.

I remember when I was writing up the previews for the girls soccer and it landed right before spring break.

So I decided to bear the early cold to chase down Carmel coach John Halloran and Antioch coach Charlie Trout in an early season match up.

The game ended in a 5-2 Carmel win. Who would have thought two months later I would be writing about how these teams are among the top programs in our coverage area.

I remember Trout saying even though the Sequoias lost to Carmel, he was proud they scored two goals in the second half. Those goals gave him hope for the rest of the season.

It looks like he was right. Antioch, 11-4-2 overall, made the season exciting, taking it to its last game against Lake's to decide which team would play Lake Forest, the Lake Division champ, in the NSC championship.

"It was a very successful season," Trout said.

Now the Sequoias have bigger things on their minds.

"We're hoping to come out strong," Trout said about the postseason.

Antioch began regional play May 13 as a No. 4 seed in the Marian Regional against No. 13 Richmond-Burton. Results weren't ready at press time.

The same can be said for Carmel. The Corsairs stayed strong all season, but they have a lot on their mind when it comes to the postseason. They as well began May 13, but as a No. 2 seed in the Warren Regional against No. 15 Woodstock.

Gearing up for state

Grant's Wagner, Ziegler look to repeat last year's success

Bailey Wagner of Grant High School throws the discus during practice last week.

FOX LAKE — Grant High School seniors Bailey Wagner and Tori Ziegler are heading to familiar territory on Saturday, May 17.

They're headed to the Illinois girls track state championships at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston. They're no strangers to success at the state meet, either: Wagner finished first in the shot-put last year, with Ziegler taking sixth.

At the sectional meet at Grayslake North on Friday, Ziegler finished first in discus with a throw of 146 feet and 1.5 inches. Wagner finished second — one foot behind Ziegler's throw at 145-1.5.

The two flipped places in the shot-put, with Wagner taking the title at 49-2 and Ziegler finishing second with a 44-3.5.

Wagner said the two are practicing hard to prepare for state.

"We're practicing about three hours after school every day, and then we have morning practices for about an hour and a half before school," she said. "We've been training hard and weightlifting — getting more reps in than usual to prepare for the state meet."

This will be the last meet for the two after a prolific career for Grant's track team. Their track careers, however, are far from over.

Wagner will head to Georgia Tech in the fall while Ziegler will compete with Illinois State. They'll both compete in shot-put and discus, but Wagner also will compete in the hammer throw, something that isn't offered in high school.

"I'm going to miss the high school sports the most, especially being able to play three of them," Wagner said. "My coach at Georgia Tech doesn't want me to play any other sports besides track, so I'm going to miss playing volleyball and basketball."

Though Wagner doesn't know anyone at Georgia Tech, she is excited about going there.

"I'm looking at it as a fresh start," she said. "Nobody really knows me, so they're not going to look at me as a two-time state champ. I can just be myself, so I'm really excited about that."

Ziegler said she is excited about going to Illinois State, but will miss some aspects of high school.

"I'll miss playing all the sports," she said. "I'll also miss being around the same people every day too."

Ziegler said she's ready for college life.

"I'm really looking forward to meeting new people and not having to go to class at the same time every day," she said. "I also already know a bunch of people from high school who are going there, so if I ever feel lonely, I can just call one of my friends."

Grant's Montemayor headed to NIU

By MATT DOUTHETT

mdouthett@nwnewsgroup.com

FOX LAKE - After balancing decisions of where he'd wrestle between Old Dominion, Illinois-Champaign, and Northern Illinois, Grant High School senior Izzy Montemayor has made his decision.

He's headed to Northern Illinois in DeKalb, and is looking forward to it, especially the short distance from home. "I'm pretty excited about it," he said. "It's only about an hour away from home, so my family can always come and watch me wrestle. Northern Illinois was just the best fit for me."

Montemayor hopes to wrestle at the 125 or 133 pound weight class. This year, he wrestled at 125, and had great success in doing so. He competed in both the Illinois-Iowa and the Illinois-Indiana All-Star Duals and defeated his opponent in both matches.

He also took second place in the 125-pound state championship this year.

"It was pretty tough loss, being in the last match of my high school career."

Montemayor, who also plays football, said the team came close to winning at sectionals.

"It was great just being with the guys and seeing how much effort and heart they put into it," he said. "We all clicked together through all the practices and hard work we put into it. We're basically brothers, and all the stuff we did together just brought us even closer together. My coaches were always there pushing me during the season to get better, and that's what I'll miss the most about them."

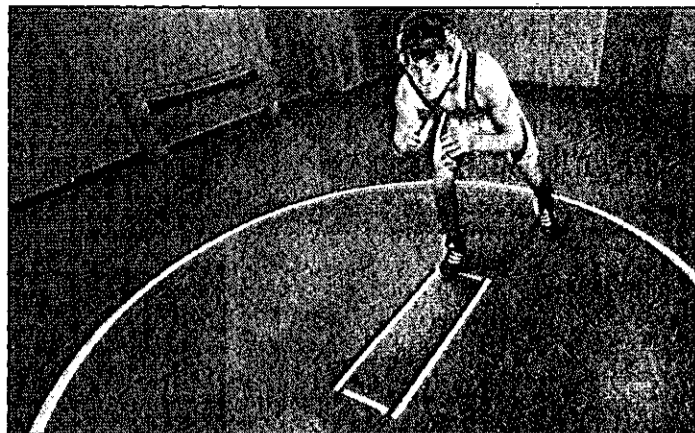

Montemayor said he knows that wrestling in college is going to be a whole different story than wrestling in high school.

"It's going to be really tough," he said. "There's going to be no slacking off. Endurance is going to play a big part and I'm just going to have to train a lot. I've been weightlifting and wrestling four times [per] week, so hopefully that will help."

Unlike high school, wrestling in college doesn't really have a season. Montemayor said he'll be training right off the bat.

"Right when I get [to NIU] the coaches are going to transition us to get used to wrestling in college," he said. "Then we'll start practicing doubles with morning and afternoon practices."

Wauconda Wildcats win round robin fastpitch softball tournament

GRAYSLAKE - Overcoming the elements on May 3 during the Grayslake round robin fastpitch softball tournament helped the Wauconda Wildcats played four games in one day to take home the championship. Key hits including a home run supplied by Kayla Quinn, consistent pitching in rainy, cold, windy weather was given by Angie Exline in addition to a strong performance in the batters box. Other noted sluggers were Jena Heck, Maggie Lepage and Brittany Mebust. Michelle Ryan and Savannah Mitchell also gave solid pitching and timely bunts. Excellent baserunning was done by speedsters Allyssa Conway, Marrisssa Honeyman and Lauren Nee. Strong performance behind the plate by Allyssa Wagner, Marrisssa Honeyman and Micah Duzey kept the other teams at bay. With only three errors in four games and excellent fielding throughout the day, the team the edge the competition during their first tournament for the 2008 season. The Wauconda 12U Wildcats first home game is against Libertyville at 11 a.m. May 17 at Cooks Park.

Dam restrictions don't add up

The State of Illinois is attempting to establish distance restrictions at most Illinois dams. They are attempting to restrict water usage 50-feet below the dams and 300-feet above the dams. We are in the middle of a 15-day review period and then this will go into law.

This issue simply is not one concerning the McHenry dam, the Fox River or the Chain of Lakes area. The legislation, if enacted, will be instituted on the Fox, Des Plaines, Kankakee, Sangamon, Rock and Vermillion Rivers, affecting 32 dams.

The McHenry Dam is a hot fishing spot and many fish, particularly big spring walleyes, are caught in spots that would be made "off limits" by the new regulation. Anglers farther south such as those in Geneva, safely can wade much closer than 50-feet from the dam there. They would be out of business, as well. Other examples can be cited, but I am sure you realize what is happening here. We are facing a loss of many fine fishing spots.

I have a few thoughts on the matter. There are 32 dams in the state that will be affected. They are of different sizes, volume of water flow, drop and depth, yet the state intends to put a blanket policy in place. To me, this would be akin to assigning the same speed limit to all roads.

One size does not fit all. How about addressing the issue of additional signage? Although I thought we addressed this issue last year in Lt. Gov. Pat Quinn's "Dam Initiative," the new restrictions call for an extremely large amount of additional signs, buoys and cables. By the way, the cost of all the new signage will have to be borne by the municipalities in which each dam exists.

Who is supposed to enforce these new distance restrictions? The Illinois Conservation Department police already are stretched to the limit and are woefully

They barely get enough money to run their inspection boats and squad cars right now. How can they take on any more duties? I have been told that additional man-hours were approved last year to enable the CDP's to post officers at one of the problematic spots last summer. If other dams were as problematic, then why weren't officers posted at all of the 32 dams, rather than only one?

I've stated that the 50- and 300-foot restrictions were numbers that were arbitrarily decided on. How about a study to prove the need for these new limits? How about a study to show which, if any, of the dams need different regulations that presently are in effect? How about some baby steps, such as possibly banning wading first, before banning watercraft?

Remember that the McHenry Dam, like many of the dams that will be affected by these new restrictions, never has had a drowning or emergency situation. A blanket restriction on all dams is patently unfair.

I asked you recently to get your typing and dialing fingers ready. I'm asking you to respond immediately because the deadline for accepting input is close. Any way that you prefer to deliver your input is appreciated, but in this case, e-mail and traditional mail will have more impact. To e-mail, send them to Diane.Kitchen@Illinois.gov. If you are willing to foot the cost of a stamp, address your mail to Barbara Frey,

Administrative Assistant, Office of Legal Services, Department of Natural Resources, One Natural Resources Way, Springfield, IL, 62702. You can direct your phone calls to Ms. Frey at 217-782-1811.

As always, I know that the readers of this column will respond in a big way. I always am proud of the way you all perform when an issue that threatens our usage of the outdoors arises.

You are invited to join the Lake County Forest Preserve Rangers and Walleyes Unlimited for a free fishing clinic from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday, May 18, at Van Patten Woods Forest Preserve near Wadsworth. The program is open to children aged eight and older. Children must be accompanied by an adult. Illinois Fishing Licenses are required of those 16 and older. The entrance and parking area for Van Patten Woods is on Route 173, east of Route 41 and west of Green Bay Road. The fishing clinic will meet at Pavilion A. The clinic leaders will share favorite fishing spots, offer tips and techniques, review rules and regulations, and teach basic water safety and safe fish handling. All equipment is provided, but you can bring your own rod and tackle if you like. There is no charge, but reserve a spot by calling Eric Ehrhardt at 847-962-0415. Snacks will be provided and prizes will be awarded to participants. Walleyes Unlimited is a fishing club that meets in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin on a monthly basis. It is the largest fishing club in the Midwest. The group was recently inducted into the Freshwater Fishing Hall of Fame in recognition of their dedication to teaching others to fish.

• Northwest News Group outdoors columnist Steve Sarley's radio show, "The Outdoors Experience," airs live from 8-9 a.m. Saturdays on AM-560. Sarley also runs a Web site for outdoors enthusiasts, OExperience.com. He can be reached by e-mail at sarfishing@yahoo.com.

Setting his own goals

Grayslake North coach runs in Boston Marathon

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgr.com

GRAYSLAKE — Running is in Matt McCulley's blood. At 23 years old, McCulley said he's been running for more than 10 years.

His accolades include running cross country and track in high school at Hoffman Estates; running on the triathlon team at Illinois State University; running in the Chicago marathon two years ago; serving as assistant coach of track and cross country at Grayslake North; and running in the Boston Marathon.

McCulley, of Grayslake, finished the marathon with a time of 2 hours 52 minutes, coming in at 571 out of more than 20,000 people.

"When I'm out there, I'm competing against myself," McCulley said.

McCulley likes to set goals for himself, such as breaking three hours on a marathon run. But the night before he left for Boston, McCulley added another goal to his list.

"I found out Lance Armstrong was in it, and I really want to try and run with him," McCulley said.

For awhile, McCulley did; he even pulled ahead of him.

"It was extremely exciting, just getting the chance to run with him," McCulley said.

The excitement that McCulley got from participating in the Boston Marathon and running along side Armstrong is what he uses to help motivate his runners.

"It's something that I would talk about every now and then," he said. "I would talk about how much work goes into it. I would explain that I knew I wasn't going to win the race. You just have to internalize some things and realize not every race you're going to be the best. I explain to them you got to look at it the same way I did."

McCulley also applies this type of thinking in the classroom, where he teaches statistics and algebra.

"Just talk about goal setting and ... if you make something important and work at it, good things will come," McCulley said.

To train for the marathon, McCulley would run in the morning before school — sometimes with the students — and after school.

"When you're training for a marathon, it's almost like a second job," McCulley said.

One of the students McCulley would train with was senior

"was a huge boost and a huge help," McCulley said. "I think he's benefited from it, too. It was nice to have that training partner."

Lane did benefit from it, and enjoyed his time training with McCulley.

"It really helped me out to have a coach that trains with you," Lane said. "It helps you a lot more than if you just have a coach on the sidelines just shouting out numbers at you. You have someone behind you, literally pushing you every step of the way."

McCulley's participation also has Lane thinking about running in marathons after he finishes college. He said he might even give McCulley a call when it comes time to start training.

Northern Air Systems sets service standard

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

If your heating and cooling system needs service or replacement, you can expect superior service and complete satisfaction when you call Northern Air Systems. "I'll do whatever it takes to make the customer happy," said owner Wayne Wodach. "Customer service and quality is everything."

After 4 years of trade school in sheet metal work and 19 years working for other companies, Wayne said he felt he could provide better service by going out on his own.

He said he started Northern Air Systems in 1984 wanting "to be small and just go out and do a good job." However, business has been booming ever since, thanks to the company's versatility and quality workmanship. Wayne said he now has 14 highly trained and certified servicemen and sheet metal workers with a wide variety of residential and commercial work experience.

In addition to servicing and installing furnaces, air conditioning systems, thermostats, and humidifiers, Wayne said they do boilers, radiant heating, and zone systems. He added that they have done the HVAC (heating, ventilation, and air conditioning) work for projects large and small, such as animal hospitals, the airport, a shopping center, an 110,000 sq. ft. company addition, and large homes.

Northern Air Systems carries brand name products known for their quality and dependability, like Trane furnaces and air conditioners, and Honeywell thermostats and humidifiers. Wayne noted that "we go to school all year round" training to use these products.

If you like my price, you'll love my work," Wodach said regarding his reasonable prices. Northern Air Systems also offers financing by American General and Trane. "I never sacrifice quality and workmanship to save money," Wayne added. So it's no surprise that 90% of the company's work comes from customer referrals. With a solid reputation for superior service, including 24-hour emergency service, Northern Air Systems is the best choice for your heating and cooling needs.
